"Seats of Power" Exhibit Shows Where City Decisions "Rest"

Here's one for you... City Brisbane officials have posed for a slightly "upside down" portrait in an effort to promote civic engagement around the opening of their new City Hall. The "Seats of Power" exhibit in the city's conference room shows renderings of the mayor and council's derrieres.

As told to the San Mateo Times:

"I had them bend over on Plexiglas," Artist Beth Grossman said.

Then she photographed them and sent the images to phototrow.com, a New Jersey-based company that scans images and transfers them onto throw blankets.

Grossman put them on salvaged seat cushions found at the San Francisco dump.

And there you have it. Read more in the San Mateo Times here.
